

From Debbie Dubitsky

I heard about Danny yesterday, from Howie Bernstein. He'd been so sick for so long. I hadn't seen or heard from him for many years, but Howie kept us updated once in a while. Danny was a very funny, but also a caring and sweet guy.

He was one of the Yackle Kids, and I have lots of memories of him. Most of them revolve around the crazy parties he used to have at his house in Brooklyn. One thing I can say, though, is when the boys dressed as girls when we were in the Workcamp in 1975, he was the prettiest. He was also a Kinderland staff member one or two of those years I was there, in the 90s—I don't recall exactly when—and I think he was Sports Director at one time. (Yes—mid-80s we think.)
